SERMON BY DR. W. M. PADEN.

Methodists and Christians Unite. Dr. W. M. Paden, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, preached the Thanksgiving sermon at the First Con-gregational church yesterday. The other two churches joining in the service were the First Methodist church and the Christian church. Dr. Paden said, in part:

Christian church. Dr. Paden said, in part:

"The soul of the man who never gives thanks i like unto the Dead sea, it is something that can never be sweetened. The ingrate is a parasite on the good nature of others, and Paul lists him among those without natural affections. Are not the best of us prone to forget to thanksgive? The story of the leper is verified every day; for every petition 'Lord have mercy,' there is but one, 'I thank thee.' Wo are too often like the liebrews in the wilderness; but when God slew them, then they turned toward him. Men are apt to be deficient in gratitude—even at this time of the receipt of a gift, and injuries are much readier remembered. Gratitude, like love, does not forget, and has been called the memory of the heart.

"We are so occupied with the things of the world that we have no time to think of the pit out of which we have God love and gratitude; we don't want to be beholden to anybody. We permit the injury of a moment to obliterate the kindnesses of a year. We keep our grievances warm and the good things done to us ga ice. We grumble and complain when we should rejoice; so our desire today is to encourage and glorify gratitude. Gratitude is a compound of equity and generosity; it is the natural response of

Rev. McClain W. Davis, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, preached the sermon. The burden of his thought was that the American people have abundant reason to be thankful for the manifold blessings of Providence for the past year, both in a materia and a spiritual way. He referred to the history of the Thanksgiving observance, and compared the cause which the early Puritans had to be thankful for to the wonderful things enjoyed by their descendants today.

"The president is a man of war," he declared, "and it is hard for him to get entirely away from his natural inclinations. Therefore, after speaking of the freedom of American institutions from threatened war without, he speaks of the passions of men, which are the foes with which we should ever be at war. The president himself sets an admirable example of the kind of life his people should lead."

Commenting on the fact that so few people now devote Thanksgiving day to the giving of spiritual thanks, the speaker remarked on the empty benches in the church, and expressed the hope that those not there were at home offering thanks around the family fireside. And in this connection let us remember that we should not forget in the midst of the feast to render thanks for the past and pray for the future."

ACTION OVER WATERS.

Claim Made That Pipe Line Drains Creek Unlawfully.

Farmington, Nov. 33.—The legal battle over the waters of Stone creek, which supplies much of the water for Bountiful City, took a new turn this week, when a suit was filed with the clerk of the district court by the Bountiful Stone Creek Irrigation company against John H. Barlow, John H. Barlow, i., and Richard Stringham, in which it is alleged that defendants have surreptitiously laid a pipe line that derange water from the creek, and through said pipe line have conveyed the water belonging to the plaintiff company to a reservoir on their own premises. It is alleged, too, that defendants, through a series of tunnels constructed on the south side of the creek bed, have deprived the creek of seepage and other water that would naturally feed the stream.

The parties to this suit were litigants in an action settled last month by the verdict of a jury granting the tone Creek Irrigation company a right-of-way over land of defendants for a pipe line, on

There is a limit to the weight a man can lift, and there is also a limit to what the stomach can do.

The cause of dyspepsia, indigestion and many similar diseases is that the stomach has been exercised too much and tis tired or worn out. Not exercise, but rest is what it needs.

To take something into the stomach that will relieve it from its work for a short time—something to digest the food—will give it a rest and allow it time to regain its strength.

The proper aid to the digestive organs is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which cure dyspepsia, indigestion, gas on the stomach and bowels, heartburn, palpitation of the heart, and all stomach diseases.

Rest and invigoration is what the stomach end gets when you use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets for one grain of the active principle in them is sufficient to digest 3,000 grains of food.

The Tablets increase the flow of gastric julee and prevent fermentation, acidity and sour eructions.
